Going West
The Old Indian Drives
Thank Your Local Editor
They Killed Reilly

—BY ARTHUR BRISBANE—

GALLUP, N. M., March 15—Going [illegible] Colorado, New Mexico, and [illegible] on to the Pacific for the [illegible] time, is as interesting as [illegible] journey. You feel that [illegible] a BIG country.

[illegible] Walker of the Interior Department of Indian irrigation service, [illegible] with looking after the [illegible], says with conviction, [illegible] of the Rocky mountains [illegible] like in." He would not [illegible] when in the army [illegible] a while ago. He is [illegible].

[illegible] sides of the track—just [illegible] desert country, waiting for [illegible] to make it magnificently fertile. Plenty of water goes to waste [illegible] and gulf. A perfect [illegible] runs through the desert [illegible] the track. Going upgrade a [illegible] easily passes the [illegible] waving his hand in [illegible].

* * *

AN Indian with a bright orange [illegible] tied around his hair sits [illegible] a load of baled alfalfa, driving [illegible] white horses. He does not [illegible] hand and probably has no [illegible] of trains or white [illegible]. But his horses are hauling about three tons. He could not [illegible] half that on the old desert road. It will take him three or [illegible] days to deliver that load and get [illegible] with about $60. A low-priced [illegible] truck would do the work [illegible] in a forenoon, carrying a bigger load.

[illegible] tried to describe heaven, but [illegible]. In fact his description is [illegible] dull and doesn't compare with [illegible] description of hell. It is impossible to describe this western country. [illegible] sky is different from other skies, [illegible] the ceiling of St. Peter's dome in [illegible], is different from the ceiling [illegible] bungalow.

AT Albuquerque, H. F. Pickerell is at the station. He is editor, T. M. Pepperday is publisher of the Albuquerque Journal, which is a [illegible] wants you to know that the Rio Grande conservancy project—[illegible] with Boulder Dam—[illegible] soon irrigate 120,000 acres of [illegible] land above and below Albuquerque, providing jobs and prosperity. A natural gas main, on its [illegible] to Albuquerque, will secure the establishment of a big glass factory. Albuquerque, "healthiest place in the world, had 17,000 population a little while ago, has 25,000 now, and will [illegible] double that."

THE value of an energetic local [illegible] is not often fully appreciated [illegible] his community, nor is the [illegible] of his advertising columns appreciated by national advertisers, as [illegible] should be. His readers buy [illegible], from paint on the roof to [illegible] in the cellar floor, but more automobiles per capita than city dwellers, have time to read about the [illegible] products, clothes, food, time saving devices, etc., and buy them.

* * *

An Indian sitting on the ground [illegible] a little tom-tom to attract [illegible] is indifferent to population, glass works or irrigation projects. He sells you, for 25 cents, a [illegible] with a face in front of it as [illegible] anything that Hoya ever [illegible]. That sale makes his day a [illegible] success. Everything is comparative.

* * *

HOW grateful a nation should be that has for its chief worry the [illegible] that it possesses too much of everything! Too much oil is the oil problem. Too much wheat is the wheat problem. Too many acres of [illegible] land, too much water ready to irrigate thirsty acres, too much wealth in the soil, is the farm problem. To say that "He hath not dealt so with any people" is putting it mildly.

Unfortunately, we haven't too much intelligence, therefore we don't know enough to bring in millions more of the kind of people that created this country, to consume the wheat, use the gasoline, buy second-hand cars, that are the automobile industry's problem, and later buy the most expensive new cars.

This nation is great because it has [illegible] people with more than [illegible] room. It would be ten times as [illegible] if it had 240,000,000 people [illegible] consume the surplus, creating at [illegible] the markets for which we struggle abroad.

* * *

IN the dining car, early, you look at the paper and read that, at [illegible] that hour, keepers and witnesses in San Quentin prison will [illegible] two flights of stairs outside an [illegible] brick building, take Alphonso Reilly, 22 years old, from his death cell and strap him in the electric chair in a room adjoining. He killed a man, the state will kill him.

[illegible] see from the window of the [illegible] high tableland, reaching for [illegible], without population, white clouds floating above it. And you believe that a better civilization in [illegible] will find a way to eliminate crime, as disease germs are [illegible] by sunshine.

SPOILS SYSTEM SEEN IN SOUTH BY COMMITTEE

Justice Department Urged by Senators To Make Investigation.

PROCEEDINGS PROPOSED

Four States Included in Charges of Upper House Group.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 15—An investigation by the department of justice of patronage distribution in southern states was urged in a report submitted to the senate today by the special committee which inquired into federal office holdings in the South.

The committee surveyed federal patronage conditions throughout the South, and its final report presented the evidence from four states—Georgia, Mississippi, South Carolina and Texas.

The committee, headed by Senator Brookhart, Republican, of Iowa, recommended that the present practice of dispensing federal offices in the southern state through the referee system be abolished and condemned it as "most reprehensible."

It also proposed that the corrupt practices act be broadened to include in its scope any person soliciting funds from a federal office holder or federal employe for political purposes.

"Your committee further recommends," the report said, "that the department of justice make a careful survey of the evidence obtained by your committee and if the facts warrant, that they start proceedings against all persons who have violated the statute covering the barter and sale of public offices."

Senator McKellar, Democrat, of Tennessee, signed the report with Brookhart but he also submitted a supplementary report condemning federal officials in Texas and South Carolina. Senator Hastings, Republican, of Delaware, the other member of the sub-committee submitted a brief separate report explaining that he had participated in only the inquiry into South Carolina conditions. He said the evidence concerning the district attorney for that state, J. D. E. Meyer, showed that he had "improperly conducted his office."

Senator McKellar also condemned Meyer and reported that this official had recently resigned.

Referring to R. B. Creager, Republican national committeeman for Texas, McKellar said:

"It is but fair to say that Mr. Creager created rather a favorable impression upon me. I agree with Senator Brookhart entirely that Mr. Creager's system of collecting money for party purposes in Texas was beyond the pale and while not illegal, might well be prohibited by law, but Mr. Creager has adopted and used the plan openly and above board.

"On the other hand," he added, "I do not think Mr. Creager has subjected himself to the grossest sort of criticism, for standing by certain office holders in Texas that are unworthy of confidence of any man, notably Campbell and Hartman. I hope he will let both be relieved from the public service." Campbell and Hartman are a district attorney and internal revenue collector, respectively, in Texas.

RELATE DETAILS OF BURIAL OF OFFICER

By the Associated Press

NEW CASTLE, Pa., March 15—Details of the burial of Corp. Brady Paul, for whose murder Irene Shrader is on trial here, took up the early period of today's court session.

Charles Crowl, son of the proprietor of the hotel where Paul roomed, told of taking the officer's Sam Browne belt, cartridge carrier and pistol. Defense counsel demanded that the state produce the belt, but Assistant Prosecutor Charles Margiotti countered with the reply: "How can I produce it when it was buried with the dead hero's body?"

Sergt. James Bynan told of polishing Paul's equipment preparatory to the funeral. Former Sheriff "Buck" Reynolds identified pictures showing a bullet-riddled car which the jury viewed last evening.

Efforts of the public to gain admission to the small courtroom continued today, another "sister" of Mrs. Shrader trying to crash the gate. Men claiming to be relatives of Glenn Dague, Irene's companion, also have tried to gain admittance, all the "sisters" and "brothers" have failed, however, as relatives of the prisoners all are provided with admission cards.

So many prosecution witnesses remained to be heard that today, customarily a half-holiday in court, found both morning and afternoon sessions scheduled.

A little red notebook found in a car abandoned by Corporal Brady Paul's slayer took on importance today in the trial as the prosecution indicated it would try to prove that the book was a record of a long list of crimes committed by Mrs. Shrader and her companion, Glenn Dague.

The alleged "crime diary" introduced as state evidence, listed many cities and stores, mostly chain stores, with figures after the entries which the state contends represented the loot obtained in holdups of the places named.

FIRE DEPARTMENT CALLED INADEQUATE

Underwriters' Board Says Equipment Not Sufficient To Cope with Serious Blaze

Marion's fire department is inadequate to furnish the protection which a city this size needs, according to a report on fire conditions here which was prepared today by engineers representing the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

Commend Chief

While commending the ability of Chief T. J. McFarland of the Marion department, the report declares that the "department would be seriously handicapped in handling a bad fire by the lack of sufficient men to man even the present inadequate equipment."

Adoption of a modern code, more equipment, regulations for the handling of explosives, and the installation of sprinklers in many buildings are among the recommendations which were made.

The report also recommended the appointment of a building inspector to hold office permanently.

Better Rate Near

In spite of the apparently adverse report Marion is within easy reach of a lower fire insurance rate, it is stated. The addition of four men at central station will immediately entitle the city to a better rating. Other recommendations are to be worked out as soon as possible. A number of notable improvements were listed during the last few years.

Although various shortcomings of the local fire prevention set-up are pointed out in the report of the committee local officials say the report may be considered a fair one, as compared with former reports.

In 1921, when the last report of the committee was received here, serious deficiencies in the waterworks system and other features of the fire-fighting facilities made it impossible for Marion to hope for a better rating at that time.

With the waterworks improved to the extent that Marion will be enabled to take advantage of a new and lower fire insurance rate with the addition of but four men to the

2 MEN ENTER HORST PLEAS

Conold and Hannah Say "Not Guilty" on Murder and Kidnaping Charges.

By The Associated Press

WOOSTER, March 15—Pleas of not guilty were entered in court records here today for Charles Hannah and Earl Conold, on indictments charging them jointly with child stealing and murder in the mysterious disappearance of Melvin Horst, 4, from Orrville, O., Dec. 27, 1928.

The indictments against the two men were returned by the Wayne county grand jury last Wednesday.

Conold appeared slightly nervous when he was brought into court. He announced his pleas, however, in a firm voice. Bond for the man will probably be set later in the day. Hannah, when brought before the court, was asked by Judge Starn if he had an attorney.

"Yes, but no money to pay him with," the man replied.

Judge Starn then offered to appoint J. O. Fritz as Hannah's attorney. Hannah refused, stating that he wanted Arthur Day of Cleveland, as his counsel. Judge Starn declined to appoint Day, saying that he would not appoint anyone from out of Wayne county.

Since Hannah was not represented by an attorney the court delayed the hearing of the man's plea on the two indictments.

SUGGEST NUMEROUS NAMES FOR PLANET

Astronomers Puzzled in Choosing Name for Newly Discovered Planet.

By the Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 15—Numerous suggestions for a name for the newly discovered ninth planet of the Solar system were before the astronomers at the Lowell observatory at Flagstaff, Ariz., today.

Roger Lowell Putnam, of Springfield, Mass., a member of the observatory's board of trustees and a nephew of Dr. Percival Lowell, founder of the observatory, said Atlas was the best suggestion that had come to him.

He also suggested the name of Constance, in honor of Dr. Lowell's widow.

Constance, he said, was a name easily translated into all languages and noted the firmness of Dr. Lowell's conviction that the planet existed. Dr. Lowell "discovered" the ninth planet 15 years ago mathematically through computations of the peculiar influence being exerted upon the planet Uranus.

Mrs. Lowell, whose home is in Boston, said that she thought the planet should be named Percival in honor of her late husband.

Dr. Harlow Shapley, director of the Harvard observatory, through whom the announcement of the new planet was made, suggested that it be named Kronos, after the mythological father of the six principal Greek gods.

Application of the name Lowell was virtually eliminated by Dr. Lowell's family in the belief that he would have preferred a classical or near classical name.

GOVERNMENT RESTS IN DOHENY CASE

Documents and Witnesses Presented To Show Payment of $100,000.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 15—After the testimony of a number of western oil men today, the government rested its case against Edward L. Doheny, wealthy oil man, charged with bribing Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior.

The prosecution rested after the presentation of documents and witnesses in an effort to show that Doheny gave Fall $100,000 in return for the lease of the Elk Hills, Cal., naval oil reserve to a Doheny company.

A number of California oil men were called and testified to over production of crude oil in California in 1922. One of them, M. E. Lombardi, of Berkeley, California, representing the Pacific and Standard Oil companies, said the Pacific company would have wanted the contract to build naval oil storage tanks at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, if it had known that the lease to Elk Hills would have resulted from it.

A Doheny company was given the Pearl Harbor contract which contained a clause giving the concern preference for the lease at Elk Hills.

A defense motion for a directed verdict freeing Doheny was denied by Justice William Hitz.

The motion also asked for dismissal of the case on ground the testimony did not support the indictment. That also was denied.

Shortly after the defense motions were overruled the trial recessed until Monday morning.

E. C. Finney, former assistant secretary of the interior, was on the stand during most of the morning session. Called as a government witness, he testified under cross examination by Frank Hogan, Doheny's counsel, that he revoked an order by Fall which said that the navy should handle all contracts involving naval oil leases. He also said that Fall was not acquainted with the details of the Pearl Harbor contract which gave a Doheny company preference to the Elk Hills lease.

REPORT THREE AT NAVY MEET IN AGREEMENT

U. S., English, Jap Delegates Said To Have Arrived at 100 Per Cent Terms.

GOV'T APPROVAL NEEDED

Crisis Surrounding France and Italy Basis for Next Important Move.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, March 15—A 100 per cent agreement among the United States, Great Britain and Japan was said in naval conference circles today to be an accomplished fact as far as the delegations are concerned.

Approval by the home governments of the American-Japanese settlement which was closed yesterday was said to be the only thing remaining to enable these three delegations to write finis to their conference difficulties.

For days these delegations have been so close to agreement that there was said to have been little between them. A provisional American-Japanese agreement, achieved by Senator Reed and Ambassador Matsudaira, is understood to have been the one thing needed to complete the circle.

Reported Result

Observers said that what this amounted to was that if this agreement is approved by the home governments the United States, Great Britain and Japan will be in a position to sign a three-power pact at any minute if this should seem desirable.

There remains the crisis surrounding France and Italy and the next move would seem to be up to these two.

The conference today was more or less marking time awaiting the arrival of Premier Tardieu from Paris for a conference with Prime Minister MacDonald tomorrow. Upon this important conversation may depend the outcome of the naval conference as far as five power pact for limitation is concerned.

The report of the American-Japanese settlement produced something of a sensation here when it became known. Just what this settlement is no one in authority was prepared to state at this juncture. Report had it that a compromise had been effected along the lines that Japan

WORKERS CONCLUDE CONVENTION TODAY

United Mine Union To Have Reorganized Group; Lewis May Be Out.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 15—Unless unforseen obstacles arise the "reorganization" convention of mine workers is expected to complete its work today with election of officers and launching of a battle to the death on the forces led by John L. Lewis.

Speaker after speaker has outlined as the new organization's chief aim the organization of "open shop" bituminous fields which admittedly far outnumber the organized miners.

With election of officers at hand, sentiment favoring Alex. Howat, Kansas, militant chairman of the convention, for the presidency of the new international union seemed stronger than ever today. Delegates on the floor and officers of the various districts have landed him in address after address and unless some unforseen change occurs his election seems likely.

John H. Walker, President of the Illinois Federation of Labor, has been talked of for the office of Secretary-Treasurer. Walker has a considerable following among the delegates. Adolph Germer has been mentioned widely for the vice presidency.

Barroom Crowd Gasps as Queen Mary Calls for Visit

By the Associated Press

LONDON, March 15—Great Britain's queen knows considerably more of beer, bartenders, and barrooms today than she has ever known before.

Yesterday she visited a British public house, counterpart of the old American saloon, and found out for herself some of the things of which so much has been written and spoken here and abroad.

Her comment upon leaving the barroom was: "I have enjoyed myself tremendously. I think it is a splendid place, so cozy and homey."

The silence of astonishment and bashfulness fell upon the men in the crowded public house when her majesty, wearing a mauve gown, appeared behind the bar and looked around her with a friendly smile.

Determined to learn all about the beer shop trade, Queen Mary addressed the bartender, a young man who conquered his bashfulness and replied to her query as to what his job was with the words "to draw beer."

Queen Mary was not just sure how beer was drawn so the bartender pulled a lever and drew a glassful to show her.

The public house was in a slum district of north central London.

After leaving the place her majesty visited some slum dwellings. In a five-room house where five families were living she talked sympathetically to the inmates and asked a number of questions.

From these miserable surroundings the queen was taken to a block of new tenements replacing the recent hovels. Here she was more cheerful and chatted gaily with the occupants.

POSSES HUNT FOR SLAYERS

Wild Western Country Scoured After Bandits Kill Officer and Wound Three.

By The Associated Press

CHEYENNE WELLS, Colo., March 15—Still at large today after a wild 200-mile dash for liberty that led them into eastern Colorado and back into Kansas, a trio of desperadoes who robbed the Manter, Kas., State bank yesterday, killed an officer and wounded three others, was sought by posses in widely separated sections of this wild arroyo country.

At Eads, Col., Deputy Sheriff Charles Hickman was killed in a running gun fight when he sought to head the bandits off. His companion, Deputy Sheriff Bill Mosher, was shot in the leg.

Continuing their flight to the northeast, the trio exchanged shots five miles west of here with Sheriff William Coe and Deputy Sheriff George Hollingshead. Coe was seriously wounded, and Hollingshead received a bullet through his shoulder.

From here the trail doubled back eastward into Kansas, whither the bandits raced after they had abandoned their own car and commandeered the automobile of Fred Hadley, a deputized citizen. Near the Colorado line they again changed cars, two youths surrendering their machine at the point of guns.

At Kanorado, Kas., they forced a filling station attendant to fill their gasoline tank, and shortly thereafter they passed a Goodland, Kas., sheriff who was on the lookout for the car they had abandoned. The trail was lost at Colby when the bandits eluded their pursuers who were in several automobiles.

Today the search was organized over a wide area on both sides of the Colorado-Kansas state line. Heavily armed posses of sheriff's officers from both Kansas and Colorado patroled the highways.

Report Fugitives Abandon Machine

Jettmore, Kans., March 15—Abandoning their motor car in a blind street here, three men, believed by officers to be the desperadoes who held up the Manter, Kansas, State bank, yesterday and later killed an officer and wounded three others in a dash for liberty into Colorado, set out on foot in the rough country along Buckner creek early today.

Chief of Police Lee Richardson of Garden City, Kans., engaged in the search here, said the three men were being tracked by bloodhounds brought by airplane from the Kansas State reformatory at Hutchinson.

Planes also were skimming over the countryside in a search for the robbers. Kansas and Colorado officers engaging in the hunt were concentrated here.

In the abandoned motor car were guns and a money bag, which Chief Richardson said had not yet been opened. Officers were close behind the robbers when they abandoned their car, Richardson said.

Bass Are Good But Illegal

Fifty Pounds of Game Fish Sold Before Halt Is Called by Warden

DOZENS of Marionites who yesterday sat down to dinners of black bass were technically violators of the law, O. H. Neimeyer, state fish and game protector, revealed today.

Purchase and sale of black bass in Ohio is prohibited, he said.

Investigation here yesterday revealed that approximately 50 pounds of black bass had been shipped here from Baltimore, Maryland, and sold at a local fish market.

State Protector Neimeyer said he believed the bass were offered for sale here without knowledge of the fact that their sale is illegal. Fish market men have been warned against future sale of that species of game fish.

* * *

WHEN State Protector Neimeyer investigated the market last night, a single bass was left of the 50 pounds shipped in here. It previously had been sold, but was confiscated by the protector.

Since the purchase of bass is illegal as well as the sale of them, anyone who purchased a bass dinner in Marion restaurants, where a good portion of the shipment was sold, could be prosecuted.

No action has been taken here against the market or persons who purchased the bass.

SMALL FIRES KEEP CITY FIREMEN BUSY

Answer Calls To Quench Four Roof and One Grass Fire; None Serious.

Four roof fires and one grass fire led firemen of the city a merry chase yesterday afternoon and this morning. None of the five fires did serious damage.

Sparks from a chimney ignited a shingle roof at the home of Ray Strawser, 459 Silver st., shortly after 9 o'clock this morning, doing $25 damage. Companies No. 2 and 3 answered the call.

A shingle roof at the home of H. F. Millington, 356 Commercial st., was ignited by sparks a short time after 6 o'clock last night. The resulting fire did $15 damage. Companies No. 2 and 3 made the run.

Other chimney and roof fires were at the home of A. R. Miller, 225 South Seffner av., shortly after 7 o'clock this morning and at the A. R. Phillips home at 101 Wildwood ct., little more than an hour later this morning. Company No. 1 answered both calls.

Grass fire near the home of Dr. J. T. Gruber, inspector of meats and milk, on Mt. Vernon av., was extinguished yesterday afternoon before serious damage was done. Companies No. 2 and 3 answered the call.

DEADLINE FOR TAX RETURNS IS MIDNIGHT

FEAR INCOME WILL DROP

Collapse of Stock Market May Reduce Total To Be Paid into Treasury.

Today at midnight is the deadline for filing income tax returns, M. C. Grant and Chance W. Beach, Marion representatives of the internal revenue department, warned this morning.

The 25 per cent penalty goes on after midnight Saturday, they said.

The two will be located in the law library at the court house this afternoon and until midnight tonight to handle returns that have not yet been filed. Returns have been filed here at the rate of 40 a day during the last week.

Long lines of men and women in internal revenue collection offices, millions of citizens keeping their annual appointment with Uncle Sam, and treasury officials anxiously scanning income tax returns for some indication of their effect upon the government's finances—there tell the story of March 15.

Must Be in Today

By midnight tonight returns for incomes of the calendar year 1929 must be in the hands of the government's agents, or in the mail, together with at least one-quarter of the amount of tax to be paid, reads an Associated Press report today.

With the estimated margin between a surplus and a deficit for the present fiscal year precariously narrow, officials anxiously awaited a tabulation of the returns. Last year, the amount paid on March 15 was a little more than $500,000,000, a sum that must be equalled today if the government's income is to equal its disbursements.

However, the collapse of the stock market late in the year and the flat reduction of one per cent in the rate of taxation were regarded as the sources of radically lessened returns although many officials held the optimistic view that the lessened payments caused by the market crash would not be so devastatingly low as had at first been feared.

They point out that while the shrinkage in security values had been estimated as high as $30,000,000,000, only a small percentage of those holding stocks had bought them at the top of the market and that many could have sold at the bottom and have incurred but a comparatively small loss.

Corporations Up

The reflection of this loss in the returns they thought might be partially offset by increased tax payments from corporations, which were higher in 1929 than in 1928, although there was a decline in the closing months of last year as compared with the year as a whole.

The pessimists, however, pointed to the only specific indication of the amount of the returns thus far available, a report on returns filed during the first 12 days of this month. This showed receipts of $36,965,330 as compared with $37,701,208 during the same period of last year. It was estimated that if the same ratio were carried through the March 15 receipts as a whole, they would fall $100,000,000 or more below those of last year.

Officially, however, the treasury refused to make any calculations but expects that it will be in a position to report the totals some time next week.

SENATE COMMITTEE TO CLOSE SESSION

Will Hear Testimony of Att'y Gen. Mitchell and G. W. Wickersham.

WASHINGTON, March 15—Senate backers of the proposed sweeping investigation of federal prohibition enforcement today prepared for a showdown at a meeting of the senate judiciary committee on Monday when Attorney-General Mitchell and Chairman George W. Wickersham of the law enforcement commission are to be heard behind closed doors.

Both Senator Norris (R) of Nebraska, chairman of the committee, and Senator Wheeler (D) of Montana are planning to wage a battle for their investigation resolutions with the end of the long tariff controversy in sight.

Mitchell and Wickersham are expected to oppose a senatorial inquiry on the plea that President Hoover's reorganization program should first be given a fair trial. They were called to aid the committee in determining need for an inquiry.

Meanwhile wets and drys were preparing for further engagements on other sectors of the congressional front.

The Wickersham commission, it became known, has requested Representative Dyer (R) of Missouri to supplement his plea for 2.75 percent beer with a summary which will be studied by members during a month's recess.

The action of the commission was taken by Dyer as an indication that it may give congress and the country a straightforward opinion on the merits of the proposed amendment of the Volstead act.

"General Crack." John Barrymore's First Talking Picture, Headliner Here Next Week; Drama. Musical Comedy. Thriller in Varied Theater Offerings.

BY HALLIE HOUCK

WHAT will you have? A play, a musical comedy or a thriller of an air picture? Take your choice from the offerings for Marion next week as enumerated below.

John Barrymore, one of THE Barrymores, making his talking picture debut in "General Crack," purported to be one of the best shows of the season.

"No, No, Nanette" a record breaker on Broadway, comes to the screen partly in technicolor, and those in the know, say it's a Wow, with Alexander Gray and Bernice Claire doing the love scenes—and how, and about four comedians that all ready have their reputations made.

The Marion should do a good business Wednesday and Thursday when "Gold Diggers of Broadway" returns to the city. There are already people talking about seeing the show for the third or fourth time. In fact we know of one man who went to Kenton to see it a second time, and is as enthusiastic about seeing it a third time as he was anxious to drive to Kenton for a second sitting.

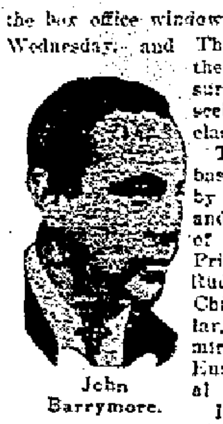
Barrymore Debut in Talkies

"GENERAL CRACK" won the highest praise of critics, so Marion audience may put four-bits on the box office window ledge Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday at the the Palace, and assure themselves of seeing some high-class acting.



John Barrymore.

The play is based on the novel by George Preedy, and tells the story of a gypsy lad, Prince Christian Rudolph Augustus Christopher Kettlar, feared and admired throughout Europe as "General Crack."

In return for military aid to Emperor Leopold, he asks half the gold of the empire and the hand of the emperor's sister, Maria Louisa, in payment. On his way to Vienna, he becomes enamoured of a gypsy dancer, marries her by gypsy rites and later presents her to the court in Vienna.

There he beholds the dazzling beauty of Maria Louisa. From then on "General Crack," leads through fighting and love to a dashing climax. There is a short prologue to the show with that delightful boy, Philippe de Lacy, doing Prince Christian as a child.

Word comes that Barrymore was shorn of his famous locks to become the closely cropped military man.

Marion Nixon does the Archduchess Maria Louisa, and there is a worthy cast of characters to carry on the plot.

Oh yes, and reviewers have said that the talkies are unusually kind in producing Barrymore's voice. And look what happened to John Gilbert. Must be awful for him to hear the acclaim of Barrymore, who, like Gilbert, has been dubbed "the world's greatest lover."

"No, No, Nanette," Sunday and Monday

MUSICAL comedies seem to be holding the fort with the producers. We have 'em and continue to have 'em. It's all according to the way they're put together whether or not a blase public will turn down their thumbs or form a line outside the theater.

"No, No, Nanette," a musical comedy tat has the saving grace of comedy galore, comes to the Palace with a reputation backing it. As a show on Broadway it packed the theaters, and some kindly critic has given the talking edition credit for being even better than the original stage show.

Louise Fazenda.

Alexander Gray and Bernice Claire carry the leads. Bernice is a newcomer from the stage. Gray was first heard in "Sally." Any one who follows pictures at all knows that Louise Fazenda and Lucien Littlefield can do the kind of comedy that rolls the people up into knots. Lilyan Tashman, blond, sophisticated, and Bert Roach, add to the funsters list.

"No, No, Nanette," is the story of an unsophisticated millionaire who imagined he could buy clothes for pretty girls just out of pure good nature and get away with it. See what a mess friend wife and a couple of private detectives do to his little Pollyanna scheme.

A Little Marion Mimes News

NOT slow at all, is this Marion Mimes group. Since the February show two one act plays for the March meeting, Tuesday, 25, and the April public production, "Polly with a Past," have been cast. The two one-act plays are rehearsing nightly at the studio, South Main st., and the director for "Polly" is busy lining up the cast to start rehearsals pronto.

This April production, by the way, will be put on two nights, 22-23.

Marion Shows "The Sky Hawk"

THE Marion theater will reverberate Sunday, Monday and Tuesday with the roar of airplane motors when John Garrick zooms around as "The Sky Hawk." Helen Chandler and Gilbert Emery also hold forth among the leads.

The story for this picture is a thriller, and if the picture lives up to the story, it should leave the audience paralyzed. All about fliers who hate each other, flier's sweethearts who are jealous, cracked up airplanes, etc.

"Gold Diggers" Coming Again

NO need to say anything about this splendid musical comedy. It's at the Marion, Wednesday and Thursday, and was at the Palace some time ago. Every one who saw it raved about it—favorably, and this writer, for one, will go again, if for nothing more than to see Winnie Lightner do her stuff. She's a panic.

Grand Showing Tab Revue

MANFRED GROSS, of the Grand theater classes Arthur Hauk's "Sunshine Revue," now running at that house, as the cleanest tab show in the country.

Public comment has been to the effect that the chorus is above standard for looks and dancing, and that the costumes are classier than the average tab show gets together.

Hauk should know the tab business. He's had his revues out for 15 years, constantly changing routines, wise-cracks, songs, etc.

BY MURRAY POWERS
Marion Star Staff Writer

WITH the Republicans monopolizing the political spotlight of the Capital City stage last week the Democrats decided to elbow in this week-end.

Observers saw in the W. W. Durbin indorsement of George White, Marietta's candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, a possible trade whereby the Kenton politician and magican would get the White organizations' support in his unmoved drive for the nomination for U. S. senator.

It is known that Durbin has been gazing at the senatorial nomination for some time, but yesterday afternoon he declined to talk, except to say that he thought it best for Ohio Democrats to get behind White in his race for the governorship.

It is generally believed that Durbin's backing of White will clear the Democratic gubernatorial atmosphere.

COLUMBUS always has its share of conventions and this week the dry goods men and the Farm Bureau Insurance men came to town.

And from the dry goods men's program one learned, after listening to Miss May B. Flynn, of New York, that there is no such a person as a fashion dictator.

Fashions come from the efforts of women to keep up with their "betters," she said.

"The favorite pastime in this country is "keeping up with the Joneses'. Here as in no other country in the world, styles move from the highest social levels to the lowest.

"The ordinary women will watch sales and then flock to stores in order to buy clothing patterned like that of the aristocracy. They may be late in the styles, but they prefer late fashions to a lack of fashion.

SMALLER cities of Ohio might well pattern after their state capital in welcoming newcomers.

Although nearly all Ohio cities clamour for industry they dont always make the new citizen feel welcome.

Not so in Columbus. Here one is flooded with "service." About the second or third day after one's arrival there drives up to the door the official city "welcome wagon" bearing the compliments and greetings of nearly a dozen Columbus commercial organizations.

Without any strings to the transaction the newcomer is graciously handed packs of letters, cards, etc., in fact everything from a letter of welcome from the mayor to pencils and a bridge score pad.

A Columbus newspaper, a department store, a bank, a laundry, a bakery, a diary, a soft drink works, an insurance agency and an automobile agency are included among the greeters.

You are given the paper free for a couple of weeks, the department store asks you to drop and have lunch as its guest, the bank gives you service and a safety deposit for three months, the laundry gives you a discount on your first bill, the bakery brings you something or other, the dairy sends you milk, the bottling works provides you with its special drinks, the insurance agency sends a budget book and the automobile agency offers you free greasing service.

And, on top of that the welcome wagon lady comes to you with your name, address, business and former home already on the tip of her tongue.

THE Associated Press, of which this newspaper is a member, carried 2,562,715 words in one normal week, Kent Cooper, general manager, told a radio audience the other night.

These figures did not include the vast market service of stocks and bonds. The news that made up the total in that week came from 1,850 different cities or towns throughout the world and consisted of 17,523 separate items. The average words a day was 507,800. All of it was delivered as the needs of each member paper required and of course no single newspaper received all of it.

The average daily state report is about 20,000 words.

CALVARY TEAM LOSES OVERTIME GAME

TWO TEAMS IN TIE FOR LEAGUE LEAD

Central Christian No. 1, Trinity Baptist Deadlocked; Evangelical, Christian No. 2 Remain in Cellar.

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK
Sports Editor, The Star

CALVARY EVANGELICAL basketeers dealt the well known dope bucket a vigorous kick last night which all but dethroned the league leading Trinity Baptists. The tail end team fought the Baptists the entire game and were not beaten until two overtime periods had been played.

Trinity took the short end of the scoring throughout the entire first half, their long shots being the only thing which kept them from being put completely out of the running. Outplayed and outfought by the Calvary five, it was only by virtue of a last minute goal that they were not defeated for the first time this year. The score was tied at 21 all at the end of the regular playing time. Snyder, Calvary center although not playing as good a floor game as his teammates looped in three seemingly impossible goals from the side of the court.

In the overtime period Peacock scored another fielder for Calvary and had the game apparently in the bag with but a few seconds remained to play when Merchant countered with a well directed shot for two points which again tied the score 23 all at the end of the overtime play.

The fast Baptist offense clicked again in the second overtime period and the leaders caged four goals in a row to defeat the Calvary team 31 to 23 for the fifth time this season.

Johnson and Peacock turned in the best exhibition of play for the losers while Applegett looked good for the Baptists.

The second game furnished nearly as many thrills as the first Epworth M. E. carrying the fight to Christian No. 1 in a way which bade fair to remove the Christian from their tie with Trinity Baptists. Led by Gillis, brilliant forward the Christians finally battled their way out of a tie when there remained but a minute of playing time. The winners hit their stride in that fatal minute to run their lead up four points and win 30 to 26.

Evans and Cram were the mainstays of the Epworth five and V. Gillis was the big noise for Central Christian No. 1. Gillis played a bang up game of ball for the winners, his excellent all round work being the only thing which stopped the Methodists in their attempt to hand the Christians their initial defeat.

First Presbyterian continued their winning ways, this time at the expense of Central Christian No. 2 who they walloped 30 to 13. Christians managed to keep within striking distance of the winners for the first part of the contest but the superiority of the Presbyterians was too much for them to hold in check. The defense of the losers cracked badly during the final period to let the winners run the score up to 30 points by the end of the game.

The final game of the evening saw the Waldo Lutherans eke out a one point victory over United Brethren 29 to 28. The battle was nip and tuck throughout, it being anybody's game until the final gun. Romine was high scorer in the contest, collecting 13 markers.

The standings of the teams are:

St. Louis Cardinals Need Pitchers To Be In Fight

FAVORITES BEATEN IN OHIO DISTRICT CAGE TOURNAMENTS

Columbus Central Eliminated; Stivers Trounces Norwood; Lakewood Loses

BY LATHROP MACK
Associated Press Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, O., March 15—Victory followed the dope only half way last night in the state high school basketball race, leaving a motley array of favorites and upstarts to battle today for the eight places in the championship tournament here next week-end.

Favored teams in the southeast, central and northwest corners of the state were eliminated from district meets. There was more complacency in the northeast, eastern and southwest districts respectively.

Today four teams were left in each of the six district meets, and semi-final games were scheduled for this afternoon. The two winners at Findlay and Akron will be eligible to come to Columbus March 21 as their districts are entitled to two representatives. They will, however, play for the district championships.

There will be only one ticket to Columbus from the Dennison, Delaware, Athens and Dayton meets.

Meanwhile Class B teams from smaller schools struggled through semi-final games at Kent, Westerville, Findlay, Dennison, Athens and Dayton, their numbers reduced to the total of Class A teams and their hopes also pinned on the eight bids to their own state meet in Columbus.

Led by Stivers High school of Dayton, three of the eight Class A schools who fought for the 1929 title here were still in the running today. Stivers trounced Norwood of Cincinnati 25 to 7, and faced Purcell of Cincinnati in the semi-finals today. Purcell defeated Greenville but neither Purcell nor Hamilton or Cincinnati Withrow in the lower bracket could reasonably be expected to stop the Orange crusher.

McKinley of Canton and Dover, runner-up to Stivers last year, were the other survivors among the eight teams in the 1929 Columbus meet. McKinley eliminated Lakewood 22 to 20 last night and met Cleveland Heights today. Dover got past Wellsville after a 21 to 17 struggle and was paired with Cambridge today.

Central of Columbus, St. Rose of Lima and Portsmouth, all Columbus visitors of 1929, were defeated last night. Central lost to Columbus North, which it had defeated twice during the regular season, 18 to 16. Portsmouth gave up to Athens in a big upset, 18 to 13, while St. Rose lost to Fremont. Bowling Green and Akron Garfield, last of the eight 1929 finalists, lost out last week.

East High of Akron, victor over the fast Lorain five, looked like McKinley's greatest threat in the northeast, while Findlay loomed as northwest district champion. The central district winner was a puzzle for both South and North of Columbus, the two finalists, tied for second in the city league and split their two-game series. Portsmouth's elimination in the southeast left the field for Chillicothe, tournament followers said.

Akron, O.—Gorilla Jones, Akron, stopped Meyer Grace, Chicago, (4). Al Nesser, Akron, knocked out Roughhouse Kitts, Wheeling, W. Va., (1); Frankie Kitts, Akron, stopped Jack Roberts, Pontiac, Mich., (3).

Denver, Colo.—Joe Marcus, Portland, Ore., outpointed Mickey Cohen, Denver (10).

RED BIRDS MAY BE WELL UP IN CHASE

Gabby Street Declines To Predict, but Thinks Cardinals' One Weakness May Be in Hurling Corps.

Editor's Note.—This is the tenth of a series of articles by International News Service sports writers on the major league baseball clubs now in spring training.

BY JAMES L. KILGALLEN

BRADENTON, Fla., March 15—"Pitching is all we need," Gabby Street, new leader of the St. Louis Cardinals, declared today in discuss*ing his club's chance in the 1930 pen*nant race. He said he has a strong infield, a good outfield and first class catchers.

Street, muffled in a red wind breaker over a striped gray uniform, stood on the third base coaching lines and enthused over his team as the players did their stuff on the diamond. "Gabby" looked at them with experienced eyes for he has spent many years in the game. He used to be Walter Johnson's old catcher when Johnson was in his prime.

"My chief concern is the pitching staff," said Street. "I have good pitching talent but I have got to develop a youngster or two who will help the old fellows out. Some of our best pitchers are aging a bit and can't stand the wear and tear like they could a few years ago. If I can get this added pitching the Cardinals should be in the running all year.

"I need another good pitcher or two to help out Haines, Sherdel, Mitchell and Johnson. It is up to me to get one or more starting pitchers out of the half dozen good prospects in camp.

"Carmen Hill, who used to be with Pittsburgh, may fill the bill. Bill Hallahan, a left-hander with us last year, is a great prospect. He finished five or six games last year in fine style. Al Granowski, another southpaw, looks great. Jim Lindsey, a big fellow with a lot of control, is in line for a regular job if he can make the grade. He came to us from Houston late last season. Then there is Fred Frankhouse. I like him. He has been with us for two and one-half seasons and he ought to come through. He won five straight games when he came up in '27."

Street said he is not worried about the rest of the club, claiming that the Cardinals, man for man, are about as strong an outfit as there is in the National league. He is "all set" in the catching department, having Jimmy Wilson and Earl Smith, experienced backstops, to depend upon.

Bottomley on First

"Jim Bottomley will hold down first base," Street declared, in outlining the make-up of the team. "He can field and hit. Frankie Frisch will play second. He is one of the best players in the game. Charlie Gilbert will take care of short.

I expect to see him pick up in hitting this year. The third base job will be between Andy High and Sparky Adams. You know High is a great spring hitter. He usually hits around .400 for the first six weeks of the campaign.

"The outfield will be made up of Chick Hafey in left, Taylor Douthit in center and either Ernest Orsetti or Homer Piel in right. I haven't made up my mind yet on Orsetti and Piel. I may rotate them."

Street did not care to predict how the Cardinals would finish. They came in fourth last season. "Gabby" declared he may not get any higher with the Cardinals but added: "This is a good ball club and someone can win with it. I hope it will be me."

The Chicago Cubs, in Street's opinion, should be the "toughest" club to defeat in 1930 unless they run into accidents. He thinks Philadelphia and Brooklyn will be much stronger. In fact, "it should be a dog race," to use "Gabby's" own words.

This is Street's first opportunity as a major league manager and he is eager to make good. He thinks he is fortunate in having a contender to manage rather than a second division outfit.

Street is the old catcher who caught baseballs tossed out of a window of the Washington monument. The monument is 555 feet high, the window from which the balls were thrown is 505 feet high. Thirteen baseballs were tossed from the window. "Gabby" caught four of those he attempted to catch.

The greatest pitcher he has ever seen was Walter Johnson, in Street's opinion. "Oh, for a Walter Johnson on the Cards this year!" he sighed.

Y CAGE TOURNEY TO BE HELD IN MARION

Any County Amateur Team Eligible To Enter; Entries Close 26th.

WILSON BEATS ROUT IN STRAIGHT FALLS IN FEATURE MATCH

Fishbaugh and Berg Wrestle To Draw; Local Heavyweight Downed.

Two wild men of the mat who forgot to behave like good boys last night attempted to copy the strong arm methods of John Kilonis and Bull Montana in the feature attraction of Promoter Bennie Criswell's wrestling attraction at the Steam Shovel gym. When the smoke of the battle had drifted away and the referee managed to separate the two battlers, Dr. Ralph Wilson was declared winner over Railroad Rout.

Wilson was not quite so impressive against the fleet-footed, double-jointed railroader as in his first appearance here last week. But the boys forgot the brotherly love code taught in the early years of their school days soon after the match started.

To the fan it was just one thrill after another. Both wrestlers were out of the ring several times during the course of the evening's entertainment and the rest of the time was spent in vicious attacks to the body.

Wilson won the first fall in 28 minutes, pinning Rout's shoulders to the axminster with a body slam. The second came after nine minutes with a punishing flying tackle putting the railroader down for the count.

In the semi-final Les Fishbaugh and Henry Berg wrestled to a draw after 30 minutes on the mat. The men were evenly matched with Berg's strength offsetting Fishbaugh's speed.

Long Time Sleep, the LaRue Indian, made short work of Bing Flanagan of Marion in the preliminary. Using the headlock, Long Time pinned the Marion boy in just two minutes. Flanagan, apparently dissatisfied with the outcome, immediately challenged the Indian to a return match.

NOWHERE AT THIS LOW PRICE SO BRILLIANT A CAR . . . BUICK

. . . That's why BUICK wins from 2 to 5 times as many buyers as any other car priced above $1200 . . .

One reason why Buick has steadily won from 2 to 5 times as many buyers as any other car priced above $1200 is because nowhere at or near Buick's low price can so brilliant a car be obtained.

This also explains why Buick today is awarded from 35 to 50 per cent of the combined sales of the fifteen makes of cars in its price class.

Clearly, with six of Buick's fifteen luxurious body types priced at only $1260 to $1330, f. o. b. Flint, Buick is easily within your means.

Remember—all Buicks are identical in beauty, in performance, and in dependability—all provide the same remarkable Buick value.

Put Buick's famous Valve-in-Head engine to any road test you wish and learn what truly brilliant performance you can obtain at this low Buick price.

Industrials Recover from Slump

HEAVY BUYING HELPS STOCKS

Steady Improvement in Wholesale Jobbing Trades Is Reported.

NEW YORK, March 15—Industrial stocks were forced downward to slightly lower levels at the beginning of today's short session by selling pressure from the same sources as in the final period of Friday's reactionary market. A few of the high-priced industrials sold off one to three points, but good recoveries were brought about in the second hour as buying demand flowed in for the shares that were forced to the lowest levels.

Slow but steady, persistent improvement in wholesale and jobbing trades was reported in the week-end reviews, showing that the gradual consumption of surplus goods has placed important industries in a firmer technical position. Some stiffening of commodity prices was also in evidence.

U. S. Steel, Westinghouse Electric, Radio and other speculative favorites sold off from a fraction to a point or two. Selling for income-tax funds was also reported in some of the brokerage houses.

International Tel & Tel, which had been under pressure, rallied about two points to 65¼. Electric Power was well bought on reports of the consummation of the natural gas merger in Louisiana and Texas. Simms Petroleum was the feature of the oils, rising to a new high at 32½.

Texas Land Trust was churned around at a swift pace slightly above 27, a loss of 2½ points from yesterday's high price. Railroad stocks, utilities and specialties were mostly on the side-lines, as professionals stirred up a dozen or more of the speculative favorites in an effort to "grab a fraction" here and there. Bears in Simmons Co. were hard pressed when that stock was rushed back to 35 for a 2½-point recovery. Short covering in General Electric and Westinghouse also accounted for the firmer market for these stocks.

Failure of the oil stocks to "hold" was disappointing to the bulls who have followed them in the expectation of a sustained advance reflecting the better conditions in the industry.

Strength Shown by Bond Market

NEW YORK, March 15—Buying of high grade investment bonds was only a little less aggressive in today's two-hour market session than yesterday, and prices displayed considerable strength. The rails were very firm, while a number of utilities easily made higher ground.

Western Pacific first 4s, Virginian 5s, St. Louis San Francisco prior lien 4s, Missouri Kansas Texas 4s, New York Central 4½s, New Haven 4½s, Pennsylvania 4¼s, Wabash 5s and Union Pacific first 4s were leaders in their division. Consolidated Gas of New York 5½s, American Telephone 5s, North American Edison 5½s, and Utah Power & Light 5s sold at their highs for the year. Standard Oil of New Jersey 5s and International Paper 6s were among the firmer industrials. The latter bond rising a point.

Liquidation Hits Stocks on Curb

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 15—Week-end liquidation was in large volume on the curb market, and the list closed generally lower, despite several independent points of strength.

The decline in several of the utilities appeared to be hastened by professional bear selling. These issues have been somewhat depressed of late by agitation for a commission to control the electrical power companies as the interstate commerce commission does the rails.

The Standard group was generally weak. Standard Power & Light B was under considerable pressure, and U. S. Electric Power sagged fractionally to within ½ points of its low.

RAINS CAUSE WHEAT SLUMP

Corn and Oats Develop Firmness While Provisions Sag.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, March 15—Reports of good rains at various points southwest led early today to lower prices here for wheat. Downturns in quotation at Liverpool, ascribed to cheaper offerings from Argentina, counted also as a bearish influence. Opening ⅞@1⅛ off, Chicago wheat futures afterward kept near to the initial range, and oats developed firmness, with corn starting at ⅛ decline to ⅛ advance, and later scoring gains all around. Provisions tended to sag.

With dispatches at hand showing rainfalls in sections of Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas, the Chicago wheat market was in sellers' favor much of the time today, although moisture relief apparently was not general. On the other hand, rallies were stimulated by crop damage advices from southern Illinois. In some cases, deterioration of Illinois wheat was estimated at 50 percent. There were also U. S. department of agriculture reports indicating that high yields per acre for Europe this season are not now expected, and that there must be heavy imports if apparent requirements are to be covered.

Special interest attached today to word that Argentine wheat shippers had reduced their asking prices aboard three cents a bushel. It was announced that as yet no general strike had been declared by Argentina railroad employes, but that the country's transportation has been slowed down. Meanwhile, overseas demand for North American wheat was asserted to be remaining slack.

Every time a college professor really is absent-minded, he has to listen to half an hour of cackling about it.

The Stars Say—

For Saturday, March 15

ALTHOUGH some very propitious auguries are justified by prevailing transits for this day, at the same time there is token of obstruction, delay and sudden visitation of a more or less hazardous nature. With wise manipulation and precaution the benefic influences may predominate. Personal matters may be interesting and felicitous.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year in which their own wisdom, good judgment and careful manipulation of affairs may overcome obstacles and disruptive forces. Sudden changes and new products are probable.

A child born on this day should have many excellent opportunities in life, but these must be wisely and prudently handled.

* * *

For Sunday, March 16

SUNDAY'S horoscope is not very important excepting for mental preoccupations and interests. The mind may be profoundly studious, leaning toward the occult or metaphysical. There may be vexations or financial anxieties.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of financial worries, with some friction or misunderstanding. Shun extravagances, speculation, strife and litigation. The mind may be alert, high-keyed and lean toward original research.

A child born on this day may be mentally alert, independent and original. It may be quick and tempestuous extravagant or gambling instincts.

China Has Stood for So Much from Other Nations That It Isn't Recognized.

BY WILL ROGERS

[illegible] I know is just what I read [illegible], or what I see as I go [illegible] Country watching Calvin [illegible] or close em up rather. [illegible] wasent going to go over [illegible] and do that at all. I [illegible] felt like it might be [illegible] a political move, for [illegible]. So the Committee [illegible] idea of wiring President [illegible] getting him to ask Mr. [illegible] Mr. Hoover did and [illegible] wired the Arizona Committee that he had wired Mr. [illegible] asking him to go. Well of [illegible] got it up to Mr. Coolidge. [illegible] gone the Committee [illegible] that he really was [illegible] the wishes of the President. [illegible] was pretty slick on Mr. [illegible] in doing this, and any[illegible] after Mr. Coolidge got there I [illegible] glad he went.

[illegible] was a wonderful sight [illegible] the Mountains and desert, [illegible] was this huge affair that [illegible] had to spend millions [illegible] spend a tremendous [illegible] roads in there, to get in [illegible] all the thousands of Tons [illegible] used. The Indians [illegible] mighty picturesque. One [illegible] the Pima's is supposed to get some of the water for they are supposed to own the reservation just below the Dam. I am going over there pretty soon when the thing gets going good and see just exactly how much land the Indians really own that is watered by this.

UGH
CAL
McNaught Syndicate, Inc., N. Y.

There were speeches of goodfellowship.

IT'S as I told you before the Apache Indians owned the land the Dam is built on. But to be above a dam is very little comfort to you in the way of getting some water out of it. You got to be down hill from it. Living above a dam is just kinder like being a Democrat, you are living and voting, but you are not deriving any of the benefits.

You know as you saw all those Indians you couldent help but think of the old days. Here was the old warlike Apaches that fought to hold all they had, and most of them wound up in jail, but there was a Washington that fought for his tribe against invaders and wound up with a flock of Statues and a Title of Father of his country. And yet I expect if the truth was known the old Apache Chiefs went through more and fought harder for their Country than George did. But George won, that's the whole answer to history, it's not what did you do but what did you get away with at the finish.

THATS why your disarmament wont get anywhere much, its just because all those Nations know that they are important in World affairs just in proportion to their Military strength. Is there any reason in the world why Japan should be the power she is and China with its millions and resources, that go to the four corners of the earth. But thats just the trouble, China has STOOD for so much from other Nations that they are not classed as one of the big shots. Why because they concentrated on peace and not war. So Japan is at London now, and China cant even make a Rotary Convention.

Spain discovered half the World, her ships were on every sea, but she let her Navy run down and wound up in the class Z League. Look at Holland, great Country big as England, and they have Colonies, but do you ever hear of them when they talk of what the big powers want? No, you would think they were Rhode Island. Why? No Navy, and some of the rest of them the same. We dont rate their culture, we dont rate their achievements, their Art, their Literature, Their Integrity, Their population, their size, in fact nothing but How big is their Navy? Why Brazil is bigger than all England, France, Italy and Japan, and has more National resources than all of them combined. Yet she couldent get to a Chamber of Commerce Membership rally. Same old answer. No Navy. They all know that.

SO you can see why there wont be any tall sinking done by any of these Babies that are up there on top now. It would be a marvelous thing if all of them could see that there was to be no more war and go ahead and do away with their arms of defense. But unfortunately they have all studied History and they know that these ideas we are talking about now are not new, they have all been gone over before, and they just cant hardly bring themselves to believe that this is going to happen.

So its as I said at first we were out there on Indian land dedicating a Dam to get water for white people to come out and use and gradually take more Indian land away. There is going to be nothing different. It started with Lief Erricson in 996, then skipped over Columbus in 1492, for he couldent find this Country in four trips. Then come the Spanish settlers, then the Mayflower was the last straw.

They didnt have any Ex President at the dedicating at their taking land from the Indians but they got it, just they same, and they have kept right on doing it up to last week. So you see history repeats itself, the same as it has in wars.

It would be wonderful if people would quit fighting it would be wonderful if people would leave the Indians alone and let em do what they wanted to. But what a chance? I dont blame Arizona mind you. You cant blame anybody. Its just the way we are bred, thats all. If we see anything we want we take it. The more so-called civilized we get the more we kill and take. But I bet many an old Indian got many a quiet laugh out of the speeches of "good fellowship" there that day, that were meant to be serious.

That They May Be One

A SERMONETTE

BY REV. W. MARTELL GEORGE
Pastor, Wesley Methodist Episcopal Church

THAT they all may be one; as thou Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us; that the world may believe that thou hast sent me.—John, 17:21.

This High Priestly prayer of Jesus was the climax of his work with and for the Disciples whom he had loved so tenderly. "Having loved His own He loved them to the end."

The prayer is divided into three parts:

1. Jesus prays for Himself, verses one to eight. He is here consecrating Himself and dedicating Himself to the full and complete sacrifice for the sins of the whole world. His life and ministry had glorified God, now He desires that His death shall make redemption full and complete.

2. He prays for His Disciples. As they were about to face trial, hardship and suffering that they might remain true. That they might be kept from sin and unfaithfulness in the world. This could only be realized by being one in affection and will, and consecrated to the task which had been given them.

3. His prayer for the world. Verses 20 to 26. That the world might be saved. The church has been intrusted with the holy power of God, to direct it, to use it, to spread it, throughout the whole world.

That they may be one.

1. The prayer "that they all may be one, that the world may believe that thou hast sent me" or that I am God's sent one. The church as the body of Christ manifests herself in lips to speak His messages, eyes to see opportunities to promote His kingdom, shoulders to bear the heavy loads of life's experiences, and above all the Master's cross, feet to run errands for Christ and hearts to burn with a holy flame of love for God and the salvation of the world. The more love we have for Christ the closer we are to one another and the more we love one another the more will we convince the world of the power of the gospel to save from sin.

2. "And the glory which thou gavest me I have given them, that they may be one." This is not referring to a future state of glory, but to the ever living in-dwelling Spirit of God in the believers' hearts. This is the glory of an inner experience, of a holy character built on the foundation of faith in God and fellowship with one another. This is the essence of Christian experience, Christlikeness in our lives. This is the world's greatest need, holy living, less thought about our own glory and self, but more about the glory of Christ. The creation of the world was an act of God, regeneration is an act of God but unity is a process. Eph. 4:13, "Until we all come in the unity of the faith and the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the fullness of Christ."

O Christians! Let us love one another, let us pray with one another, let us share with one another, that the world may believe that Christ is God's sent one and that we may share together the glory of Christ.

ADAMS LUMBER CO. PLANS SPRING SALE

OFFERS LOW PRICES FOR TWO WEEKS

YARD AND MILL ON SILVER ST.

Will Reduce Cost of Lumber and Other Items During Period.

A new and novel plan of merchandising lumber is planned for the next two weeks by the Leslie Adams Lumber & Coal Co., 513 Silver st. Everything in lumber and millwork is to be offered, for this period, in a great cash sale during which time very fine discounts will prevail. The sale will start Monday, March 17, and will close Monday, March 31.

Opportune Time

Coming, as it does, right when people are thinking about their lumber needs for this spring and summer, this announcement is of unusual interest. The man in Marion who desires to reroof will find his shingles greatly reduced; if he desires to remodel his home, he will find that he can get all the necessary lumber and mill work at a remarkable saving. If he wants screens or screen doors, they are both included in this money saving sale. If he desires to build a new home, he can buy all his lumber direct from the Leslie Adams & Coal Co. at this reduced sale price. If he wants new doors for the garage, he can buy the latest equipment at very low prices.

The farmer will also share in these two weeks of value giving. Chicken coops, hog houses, brooder houses, graneries, hot beds, fences, garages, etc., have all been listed for two weeks selling at the lowest prices which will prevail this season. If the farmer will anticipate his needs, he can save by buying during the next two weeks, and a plan has been worked out whereby the lumber will be delivered as it is needed this summer.

Very seldom does a lumber yard offer a sale, and the thought behind this unique effort is that by getting people of Marion and vicinity to anticipate their yards requirements, many new friends may be won as customers by the Leslie Adams Lumber & Coal Co.

Yard on Silver St.

The lumber company, offering this sale, operates at 513 Silver st., a complete mill, lumber yard and an all-the-year-round coal service. Last year this company celebrated the completion of its second year in business by an elaborate expansion of its interest.

Leslie E. Adams, general manager of the company, organized the firm three years ago to take over the plant and equipment of the old Economy Lumber yard. For five years previous to this time he had served Marion as a general building contractor, and is fully acquainted with its building needs. Mr. Adams came to Marion some 16 years ago, and was employed as a carpenter for many years before engaging in the contracting business. With a strict policy of always giving the customer everything that had been promised and often going even farther than the service which had been agreed upon, he rapidly earned for his firm a reputation for square dealing which has to a large degree been responsible for the rapid expansion of the business.

ACTIVITY MARKS WEEK IN MARKETS

Oranges Hit New High at 70 Cents a Dozen; Eggs Fluctuate.

Marked activity in price changes was noticeable in Marion market items during the last week.

Orange, butter and egg prices figured in the general fluctuation, while several new items were added to the list of fruits and vegetables.

Oranges skyrocketed to new high levels the middle of the week. California naval oranges, the cream of the crop, hit as high as the 70 cent mark, with cheaper grades selling around 60 cents. From this point, Florida oranges took up the price range, selling from a high of 60 cents as low as 35 cents a dozen.

Eggs were selling at a wide variety of prices during the week. The quoted price range was 25 to 32 cents a dozen, which is abnormally low, considering the season.

Butter started on an upward trend early in the week, but registered only two gains of a cent each during the first two days of the week. Larger city markets continued to shoot the price to higher levels, but Marion prices ended the week at 44 to 48 cents a pound.

Onion sets, at 15 cents a pound, were new last week. Eggplants, from Florida, were selling at 20 and 25 cents each as the week closed. Spinach is now available at 15 cents a bunch, two bunches for 25 cents.

Bank Clearings Back to Normal This Week

Bank clearings for the last week appear rather ragged as compared with those of the preceding week. However, the total clearings of $577,088.84 is a normal figure, while the $1,023,179.05 of the preceding week was abnormally high. Distribution of tax money to the various taxing districts of the county was responsible for this high figure.

ELECTRIC PLANTS FOR FARM IMPROVED

New Models Introduced at Conventon of Delco-Light Co. at Dayton.

More electric power is coming to the farm, to put a powerful shoulder to the tasks of the farmer and his wife. According to S. E. Mohat, local Delco light dealer, it means more power for the milking, for the automatic refrigerator, the electric water system, the ironing and the washing and the churning, as well as for half a hundred other everyday farm tasks.

The news of a new development in individual electric plants that puts more electric power at the disposal of the farm has been brought back by the local dealer from a district convention of the Delco-Light Co., held at Dayton.

New Models Improved

"Announcement was made at the convention that there are now two new models of Delco Light plants, far in advance of such equipment previously available," Mohat states. "The new models are larger than other single-cylinder Delco Light plants and produce 800 watts of steady reliable electric power. The extra reserve of power afforded in these big new 800 watt plants enables the farm to have more lights and additional current for operation of farm and household appliances. Experiences of the more than 250,000 Delco Light users have shown that the added power, afforded in these new plants, greatly increases the effectiveness of farm electric service.

"One of the new plants embodies the combination idea which has revolutionized farm electric service since it was introduced several months ago by the Delco Light Co. This combination principle enables the user to draw current from the batteries when only a few lights are needed, and when heavier electric requirements are made, the engine automatically starts, providing power direct from the big generator. The other model is of the battery charging type, supplying reliable electric service direct from the batteries."

The new models are a notable addition to the company's line of electric plants and water systems, according to the local dealer, and are typical of the engineering and manufacturing leadership that has made the Delco-Light Co. a General Motors subsidiary, the largest manufacturer of such equipment in the world.

Fruit Growers Want $60,000,000.

If they have not already done so by the time this gets into print, the citrus fruit growers of Florida are going to ask the government to reimburse them to the extent of $60,000,000 for damage done to their groves by government agents under the pretense of waging warfare on the fruit fly.

So many and varied are the sources of complaint growing out of the activities of the hordes of agents of the government unloaded upon the suffering Gulf state that there can be little question that they have foundation. Not only do the Florida citrus fruit growers complain as a result of the damage done to their groves, and in many cases to livestock, but they are also incensed as a result of the insolence and overbearing manner of those overrunning and destroying their properties. In some cases the growers have resorted to firearms to repel the intruders, and, from all accounts, not without justification.

But the offending of these bug agents has not been limited to their work of destruction. They are also charged with the wasting of government funds, and a number of them have been charged with assisting rum-runners in the carrying on of their transportation of liquor.

Following his return a few days ago from Florida, to which state he had gone with a group from the house appropriations committee, of which he is chairman, Congressman William R. Wood, of Indiana, related to President Hoover some of the extremes to which the bug agents of the government had gone. He told the president that the "bugologists" had done "more damage than all the bugs in the state," and following his conference with the president he declared that losses in Florida through the campaign against the fruit fly would easily total the $60,000,000 the growers claimed to have suffered.

Not only this, but Chairman Wood stated that $6,000,000 had already been spent in the work whereas practical men on the ground estimated it could have been done for $1,500,000, and he went on to describe posters showing greatly-magnified pictures of the fruit fly which had been distributed throughout Florida, the state being plastered over with them—all at government expense—by the agriculture department.

"Some one in the department of agriculture," the congressman concluded, "could be indicted for conspiracy to destroy the Florida citrus fruit industry and be convicted."

Is it hard for the reader to credit such a state of affairs as reported from Florida? It shouldn't be, if he will recall the campaign waged against the corn borer right here in Ohio when congress very complaisantly appropriated $10,000,000 to be burned up in giving minor patriots summer jobs.

And, by the way, what has become of the corn borer which was devastating the corn fields of Ohio up to the time congress refused to make another appropriation of $10,000,000 to combat its ravages?

To Test Eighteenth Amendment.

In the event that the report of a special committee of the New York Lawyers' association is approved by that organization, which is as good as assured, the eighteenth amendment to the federal constitution is to be attacked in the United States supreme court on the ground that it was illegally ratified in defiance of the tenth amendment to the constitution.

Such was the announcement made Thursday by former Supreme Court Justice Daniel F. Colahan, chairman of the committee, of which the other members are former Supreme Court Justice Robert McCurdy Marsh, Professor Leslie J. Tompkins, head of the law school of New York university; Martin Conboy, former president of the New York City Bar association; Seldon Bacon, Charles Strauss and Julius Henry Cohen, the last three named being representative members of the New York City bar.

The eighteenth amendment was ratified under the provisions of Article V of the constitution, which provides two methods for the amendment of our basic law. To refresh the memory of the reader, we quote it. Following a four-word preamble, it reads:

"The congress, whenever two-thirds of both houses shall deem it necessary, shall propose amendments to this constitution, or, on the application of the legislatures of two-thirds of the several states, shall call a convention for proposing amendments, which, in either case, shall be valid to all intents and purposes, as part of this constitution, when ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the several states, or by conventions in three-fourths thereof, as the one or the other mode of ratification may be proposed by the congress; provided that no amendment which may be made prior to the year one thousand eight hundred and eight shall in any manner affect the first and fourth class in the ninth section of the first article; and that no state, without its consent, shall be deprived of its equal suffrage in the senate."

It may be observed that there is nothing in the foregoing article which confers upon congress the power of changing the constitution; that congress is simply given the power to propose and submit amendments thereto and provide the manner in which they are to be ratified.

The constitution, which originally consisted of a preamble and seven articles, was ratified by a convention of the states September 17, 1787, and declared in effect the first Wednesday in March 1789. The ten original amendments thereto were declared in force December 15, 1791. The last of these original amendments, Article X, reads.

"The powers not delegated to the United States by the constitution, nor prohibited by it to the states, are reserved to the states respectively, or to the people."

Now this committee of New York lawyers holds that this tenth amendment was adopted to secure the people of the United States in their individual rights, so that they would forever be beyond the reach of any expansion of federal powers, save such as might be granted to the national government by the people themselves; and that the tenth amendment, because it was an amendment, overruled every prior conflicting provision of the original constitution. Referring to the effect of the tenth amendment and its bearing on the eighteenth, the report of the committee reads:

"It thus wiped out the power conferred on congress by the fifth article of the original constitution, of selecting an alternative method by which amendments might be adopted, giving added powers over the people and their reserved rights, and made it necessary, when any added new powers over the people and their individual rights were sought, to go back to the people themselves as the sole possible source of such powers.

"The state legislatures have not been made the agents of the people to vote away the people's rights, or to give any additional power over them.

"The eighteenth amendment conflicts with these fundamental constitutional rights of the American people, and can confer no powers on the national government over the people or their individual rights until ratified by the people themselves assembled in constitutional conventions in their several states.

"Consequently, the attempts of congress and the courts to enforce the eighteenth amendment, without its prior adoption by the people of the United States, attack the very foundation of all our constitutional rights and liberties as American citizens."

We have gone into this matter at some length for the reason that it is an absolutely new line of attack on the eighteenth amendment, which has resulted in bringing to the people of the United States one of the greatest problems the nation has ever been compelled to face. It is very generally conceded that the liquor problem is closely linked with the crime problem; that liquor is financing crime, and that the two combine to make the great joint problem confronting the country today.

We do not profess to be legally skilled. We do not profess to know the merit, or lack of merit, of this New York committee's interpretation of our basic law. We offer it simply as an outline of the latest attack directed against the eighteenth amendment, no matter for what reason or cause that the reader may judge of its worth.

As a plan to give a blow to racketeering and unemployment, Senator Heflin, of Alabama, has introduced a joint resolution calling for a census of aliens and the deportation of all those illegally here. It was almost inevitable that, sooner or later, Thomas could hit upon some idea worthy of general commendation.

Magistrate Albert H. Vitale, of New York City, who dined with seven racketeers and borrowed money from Arnold Rothstein, gambler, and dope and liquor runner, has been removed by the unanimous decision of the appellate division of the supreme court, and it is announced that other magistrates are to suffer a similar fate. In time decent citizens may attain an equality in New York City courts with its gangsters, gunmen and rum-runners.

Soft Living Takes Its Toll.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Ben Jonson, that inimitable sixteenth century writer, dramatist, poet, and friend of Shakespeare, wrote these words:

"Oh, Health! Health! the blessing of the rich! The riches of the poor!

"Who can buy thee at too dear a rate since there is no enjoying the world without thee?"

Health is for rich and poor so long as the laws of health are followed. Little does one enjoy the world when health is gone.

What can be done to build for health? You can not have good health without plenty of physical exercise. Yet the great insurance companies tell us that physical examinations of thousands of persons reveal the fact that human muscles are growing flabby. In this country, and in other countries, at the beginning of the World war, the fact was found, never before realized, that thousands of young men were unfit for service because of flabby muscles and other physical defects.

Most of the things that our ancestors had were acquired through hard work. They worked for what we merely press the button to get.

In primitive times man dug in the ground, climbed trees and hunted game and animals. He had to be on the defensive against attacks of the enemy.

Today, labor-saving devices are increasing constantly. In consequence, most persons are not getting the necessary exercise to maintain good health. They go without it unless they plan for it in the day's program.

Are you getting sufficient exercise? If you are not, the chances are that if you go on very long in your own way you will be in the class with the big army of the physically unfit.

When there is a continued lack of proper exercise, not only do the muscles grow flabby and soft, but, besides, the lungs do not get enough exercise. The heart action grows weak, for here, also, is a great mass of muscles demanding exercise. The blood vessels grow weak and fail to do their required work of carrying the blood to all parts of the body.

During the cold months, too many persons stay indoors most of the time. They should be having regular daily exercise, indoors or out, every day of the year. For a normal person, bending and stretching exercises are good for flabby muscles. Do not exercise spasmodically. Begin in moderation and work up to a point of judicious exercise. Nothing could be better for your health.

It is a good thing to find some form of physical play, some form of relaxation from which pleasure and profit are derived. Outdoor sports are more popular than ever today, but there are thousands of people who are onlookers merely. They do not go in for sports themselves, but even so, the open-air life is decidedly beneficial.

Spring is coming on and with it outdoor golf. Here is a form of exercise that takes thousands of persons out into the fresh air and sunshine, and probably adds years to the expectation of life.

If you have been an indoor person during the winter months, now is the time to change your habits and get out-of-doors. Perhaps you like tennis. This is a splendid recreation, but it should be known that a good many overdo in playing tennis. It is a most vigorous, strenuous game, but none is more conducive to strength and vigor if you are in good condition and can stand the pace.

It is well to have a physical examination once a year, so that you may regulate your exercise to your physical powers.

Editorial Opinion.

THE GUILTY SENATE

The senate of the United States generally is more or less of a nuisance when there is pressing constructive legislative work to be done for the country; and sometimes it is a positive detriment. The body appears in the latter role in connection with the tariff bill which, after six months of "deliberation," is still "under consideration" in the chamber, with the date of the final vote unfixed.

This situation exists because for some time members of the so-called "coalition," consisting of Democratic members and radical Republicans, have been functioning as an obstructive bloc which has effectively prevented action on a measure that might easily have been disposed of within a few weeks after its receipt from the house, if enough of the members of the senate had been disposed to serve the country rather than play cheap politics.

The evil in the situation is its effect upon the business and labor conditions of the country. Tariff change and in particular tariff tinkering with no very clear-cut program ahead always has a deleterious economic effect; and when it is prolonged the result is very bad for everybody. This year the evil results of prolonged loitering are definite and marked.

Some of the senators howled and jumped as though stuck with sharp pins when Secretary Davis asserted that the delay in action on the tariff bill is responsible for the prevalent depression. But the secretary told the truth, nevertheless, and the very heat generated by those who undertook to contradict him, indicates an inner consciousness among them that they have been unfaithful to their public trust.

It is very evident, too, that the opinion of Mr. Davis is also the opinion of the country at large, else there is no meaning in the flood of messages pouring in on the members of the senate from individuals and organizations, protesting against tariff delay and demanding that action be taken so that commerce and trade will know where it stands and will be able to return to normal.

It lies with the senate of the United States to say how soon this country will catch a breeze and sail out of the economic doldrums.—Detroit Free Press.

AROUSED.

New York City appears at last to be awakening to the menace of Communist influence and activity in that community, an influence and activity which increasingly has become more powerful and dangerous.

Police Commissioner Whalen in this respect speaks for the nation's largest city. He has declared that "Red" representatives have "honeycombed" the ranks of public bureau employes and private concerns and have infected the public schools.

This disclosure is not greatly surprising when it is considered that New York City has been the vantage point from which Communists of every degree for years have carried on their propaganda in the interests of social, industrial and political revolution.

It is in New York that W. Z. Foster has his office. It is in New York that other prominent Bolshevik, Communist, pacifist and "liberal" leaders have their headquarters. It is from New York that flow floods of papers, pamphlets, periodicals and "literature" designed to assist the growth and power of Communism in America to an approximation of character and kinship with that of Soviet Russia. In New York these forces, almost up to the present, have worked practically without molestation.

It now appears that this dangerous danger is to be met and dealt with by officials and business men of the metropolis. The business and industrial interests of the city, under leadership of the chamber of commerce, have launched a campaign which should serve to depress the enthusiasm of those who come crying Communism under the protection of the flag they would destroy. The proposal of this movement is a basic action which long ago should have been taken: The deportation of all alien agitators will be enforced whenever possible; all employers of labor will be asked to dismiss alien Communists in their employ and list their names with the police.

This action by New York business and industrial interests in connection with the chamber of commerce should be duplicated in every city of the republic. It contemplates an offensive against Communist influence which soon should produce most gratifying results. American indifference until now has been the surest reliance of all "borers from within," as well as of those enemies of our political and industrial system who attempt to work harm to this country from abroad.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

World Building.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

In astronomy and astrophysics three great mysteries constantly confront us. In the earliest definite phase of cosmic evolution, we feel pretty sure that island universes, of the type of spiral nebulae, were the first great aggregations of cosmic dust or material particles to take definite form. But we can not say what is gravitation—the force which causes bodies to attract each other in a highly specific way; nor why bodies move around each other, except as the result of this mysterious gravitation; nor when and where bodies have collided with each other in the past.

The natural query, which has a most surprising answer, has to do with the subject of star encounters. The universe contains millions upon millions of stars—literally stars without number—scattered about in space. There are no "fixed" stars; they only appear "fixed" because they are so far away. All these stars are in motion—some of them at enormously high velocities, possibly approximating in some instances to the velocity of light. Why, then, do they not collide oftener?

Although the inter-stellar spaces appear on a clear night so deeply crowded with stars, they are really extraordinarily empty. Two stars which appear very close together, when seen with the naked eye or even through the telescope, may be thousands of light-years apart. That would be thousands of millions of millions of miles apart.

The life of a star may be reckoned in thousands of millions of years. Computation shows that there is only an almost infinitesimally small chance that one star will ever coincide with another in the course of its entire existence. But the chance does exist—say one in a hundred millions. This accident, remotely possible and rare as it is, certainly happens, and has occasionally happened in the past. Not a few astronomers now believe—Eddington, Jeans, for example—that our sun suffered such an encounter. It is not known whether the passing wanderer actually encountered the sun.

It is thought more probable that it passed near it, and by the force of attraction drew from it a great tidal wave of matter, a huge jet of liquid and gaseous substance. As the wanderer passed the sun, it gave a powerful angular momentum to this spurting mass. Instead of falling back upon the sun, this spurting mass broke up into smaller masses. These smaller masses, passing through space of fairly uniformly dense-packed fine matter, became spherical in shape as a sort of uniform rounding-off process, and fell naturally into orbits tending toward the circular. These globes could not escape from the powerful drawing influence of the vastly larger sun. So they began to run and have continued to run ever since, round and round the sun. These revolving globes, swinging in nearly circular orbits, are the planets.—Copyright, 1930, International Feature Service, Inc.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. M'INTYRE.

New York, March 15—Women who play the market are better losers than men. They exercise better judgment and are less inclined to hysteria in a panic. This was strikingly illustrated in the "Big Crash." Among thousands of women, stripped of fortunes, not one sought solace in suicide.

While men tore their hair, wrung their hands and vaulted over high up windows, the lady plungers displayed a stoic calm. They did not even indulge the feminine prerogative of swooning. New York has a half [illegible] women who make a business of margin trading.

A dozen brokerage offices with a strictly feminine clientele are always crowded. The traders arrive at 9 o'clock and remain until closing. Instead of hopping about like hens on the proverbial hot stove, they sit placidly in their chairs with notebooks and pencils.

They are not inspired by that market vagary known as the "hunch" and are more careful of all in weighing financial facts. When the big upheaval desolated hundreds of board rooms, those patronized by women remained comfortably filled—waiting, watching and hoping for clearer skies.

Judged by the amount of capital, women also have proved more successful in their stock manipulations than men. They are not so greedy for huge profits as for the safe quick turnover netting a modest return. A number were realizing from $100 to [illegible] a week in this fashion before the debacle.

Ladies who pit their wits against Wall Street are not confined to a particular class. Every type is represented—the professional, the housewife, the stenographer, sales women, chorus girl and ladies of the half world. Indeed, there are many charwomen who "play the market."

LIFTS QUARANTINE ON SMALLPOX CASE

Disease Apparently Stamped Out in County; Marion City Has One Remaining.

Smallpox apparently has been conquered in Marion county outside of Marion city, according to a report made this morning by County Health Commissioner N. Sifritt.

Dr. Sifritt announced the lifting of a quarantine on Ernest Solomon, of Prospect, the last case of the disease to come to his attention in the county.

Diphtheria also has been combatted successfully by county health authorities, 1,200 school children having been given the Schick immunization test during the past few weeks, Dr. Sifritt said.

Rhoads impounded seven dogs during the week, his report shows.

FIRE DEPARTMENT CALLED INADEQUATE

fire-fighting force of the city, Marion is in position to cash in on its improvements, Fire Chief T. J. McFarland pointed out today.

Should the city be unable, through financial or other difficulties, to take advantage of this offer for new lower rates on business and commercial insurance, much of the value of the added protection will have gone to waste, although Marionites are receiving better fire protection.

The four additional men, required by the Ohio inspection bureau, which is due to visit this city and revise insurance rates soon, will avail the city of even better protection, as well as effecting the reduction in rates, Chief McFarland pointed out.

Urge Additions to Force

Possibility of securing funds to employ the four additional firemen needed by the city to place it in a better fire risk rating will be taken up Monday night by Mayor L. Don Jones at a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce.

Addition of more men to the undermanned force of the department is one of the measures imperatively urged by the report of the committee.

Another measure urged strenuously by the report is the adoption and rigid enforcement of a building code, conforming to modern requirements for construction and fire protection. The report urges the appointment of a building inspector to enforce such a code and to be employed full-time.

Marion has had no building inspection code, although until recently a building inspector held office.

The committee also would have the national electrical code adopted by ordinance and enforced. According to its recommendations, the building inspector would have charge of issuing building permits, a task which is now assigned to the city clerk.

Conflagration areas and the possibilities of spreading fires is a feature needing immediate attention, the committee recommends. The report asks that the owners of existing defectively constructed buildings, which are so located as to form conflagration areas, be required to suitably protect floors, party-walls and exposed window openings.

The report recommends two new fire stations, and an additional ladder company at headquarters here. One should be built soon in the vicinity of Church st. and Lincoln av., to be equipped with an engine company. Another eventually should be established at Bellefontaine av. and Davids st.

Criticize Alarm System

The existing and overcrowded fire alarm system of the city came in for a good deal of criticism. Only half the existing boxes are thought to be reliable, and the boxes are too few in number. The boxes are too inconspicuous, the report declares.

An assistant chief is proposed, with other additional officers.

The average loss per fire for the five year period ending 1927 is shown as $837, decidedly high. This was largely caused by heavy losses in 1925, when the total fire loss ran to $260,852. The average yearly number of fires for the period was 3.9, a low figure, the report shows. The average loss of $3.25 to each Marionite for fires during that period is considered moderate.

The general summary of the report, which may be considered as some of the more important features of the local fire situation is as follows: "Water supply adequate; some unreliable features of distribution. Quantities available in principle mercantile district sufficient; elsewhere, fair to good. Fire department weak. Fire alarm system somewhat inadequate and has several unreliable features.

"In the principal mercantile district, contruction is mainly lacking in fire resistive features; this condition, together with a weak fire department, makes serious group fire probable. Due, however, to generally low heights, fairly wide streets and good accessibility the probability of a general conflagration is low. In the manufacturing sections, the hazard is local. In residential sections the flying brand hazard makes spreading fires probable."

The mercantile district is shown on an accompanying map to lie mainly within a block of Main and Center sts.

The local telephone service as a means of handling fire calls is regarded good. False alarms coming in over telephone can be traced.

Numerous improvements are noted, commending the water company on its service here. Since the 1921 report a new agreement has been reached between the city and the company, well capacities have been increased, a softening plant installed; extinguishers have been provided at the pumping station and a 3,000,000 gallon service pump installed. The report notes a decrease in the water consumption here since the installation of the softening plant and higher rates were put into effect. A new main has been laid from the pumping station to the city, adding both quantity and reliability. Other improvements include installation of 10.97 miles of mains, 235 gate valves, 58 large hydrants have replaced smaller type, and the total number has been increased by 64.

The average maintainence expense for the fire department including the fire alarm system, for the five year period ending 1927 was $54,689, the report shows. For 1927 it was $56,330, which represents a per capita expense of $1.71 based on an estimated population of 33,000.

Some difficulty was experienced when the pumps in some of the fire trucks here were tested. Several parts had to be replaced, and two of the pumps would not deliver their rated capacity.

JAPANESE PAPERS GIVE NEWS IN EXTRAS

By The Associated Press

TOKYO, March 15—Leading Japanese newspapers today issued extras featuring dispatches that reported an American-Japanese preliminary agreement giving Japan "almost 70 per cent" of American auxiliary naval strength. Official circles withheld comment, but a more hopeful atmosphere was noticeable.

Japanese correspondents in London were virtually unanimous in reporting that one of the features of the agreement is the undertaking by America to build only fifteen 10,000-ton cruisers prior to 1936, although the general treaty will allot her 18.

Further, it was intimated, America accepts submarine parity with Japan. The correspondents allege Great Britain adheres to this agreement, assuring at least a tripartite naval treaty.

Nothing is immodest if there is no one to look.

Just Things

BY EDNA S. DUTTON

Visitors

PEDESTRIANS wending their way down West Center st., will discover some real harbingers of spring if they chance to peer into the several "fortune telling" emporiums which dot the avenue. Not that the interior of the rooms are so much to see but the occupants are colorful and cordial. They are super-cordial if you look as though you might be a prospective customer. Our fair city has been chosen for the nonce as the abiding place of a band of gypsies. One doesn't have to have the learning of a Philadelphia lawyer, to guess that the proposition is purely commerical, but nevertheless one turns to look a second time at them. One guesses that the garb is used for effect now, rather than holding to tribal traditions and feels that they are losing some of their picturesqueness when they crash the avenue garbed in a fur coat. High-powered cars of no ordinary make transport them about the country and this mode of traveling, combined with the up-to-date apparel affected by the nomads, make them look much like the ordinary tourist. There are those who remember when the approach of a half dozen wagons laden with dozens of folks, big and little, hove into sight, was the signal for every one to skip out to his own yard to hang over his own picket fence.

Guest "Workers"

SALVATION army folks have adopted a sort of a Captain John Smith slogan and folks who would dine at the place must first prove that they are hungry by earning the meal by the callouses of their hands. When business is thriving the rear of the army hall on North State st., is a busy place and the woodpile grows in size. The workers seem to be glad of an opportunity to do something, judging from the way they stick to it. Wouldn't you, like some of the rest of us, like to listen in on some of the tales they may be telling as they furnish the power for the cross cut saw?

Helpful Friend

KITE time is often a sad time for some youngsters. It was for at least one, that I know of. Working diligently to get his string straightened out to insure a perfect flight, this air minded youngster neglected to tie up his dog, who evidently imbued with the spirit of helpfulness, took the string in his own teeth and proceeded to break the world's record for flight and sending the kite into the air in less than nothing. Tears were forthcoming immediately for the owner of the kite and a pedestrian who at least might have tried to halt the offender, got a good laugh out of it.

"Custom Built"

He Talked, but He Could Deliver

A STORY OF LOVE AND LIFE IN HOLLYWOOD

BY SIDNEY HERSCHEL SMALL

CHAPTER 30

JOHN ANDREW thought $2,000 exceedingly low for a car only driven a few hundred miles and as good as when it was first rolled off the floor, but he said, anxious to expedite matters, "I'll take it."

"I've got to speak with Mr. Martin. He's in charge of the used car [illegible] of our organization. If you will wait . . ."

John Andrew waited; he waited a long time. When his questioner returned Martin came with him—a [illegible] nervous man with sandy hair and salt and pepper clothes. "So this is the gentleman who wishes to sell a custom built Mercury, $4,980 delivered here, for less than half you paid for it less than a week ago?" he demanded without waiting for preliminaries nor introduction. "Car in a wreck?"

"Look out of the window," Kellogg said. "It's the big green roadster. Does it look like its original [illegible]'s been dimmed any? Go ahead and examine the car, if you wish."

"I can't see the license number," Martin, staring down, said.

"Of course you can't; there hasn't been time for one to be issued. You can find the date of sale on the sticker attached to the windshield."

"And you want to dispose of a new car, hardly broken in, for——"

"It's worth more than $2,000," Kellogg agreed. "That's the price this man offered. Personally it ought to be worth $3,500 at least. But I want to sell it at once——"

"I see," Martin said. John Andrew knew that he didn't at all. "You're in a hurry to sell it, eh?"

"Um. And you don't seem very delighted at having such a bargain offered you."

"You are located here permanently now?"

"My plans are vague," Kellogg said. "At the present time I'm staying at the Poinsettia, but I don't know how long I'll be there. If you're suspicious about my owning the car and having the right to sell it or drive it over a cliff if I want, why don't you wire the Mercury people in San Francisco and find out?"

"You have no objection to my doing that?"

John Andrew snapped, "I told you to do it, didn't I?"

"I see. . . and you'll wait here until we receive an answer?"

"I will not," Kellogg said quickly, "and if you people don't want the Mercury say so."

"It should only take a half hour or so, sir. . . . Why not wait here, and then we can close the matter?" Appeasingly, "Given the necessary information about the car, that it was paid for in San Francisco, and you can have your check immediately."

"Of course it's paid for," Kellogg said. "If you really want the machine and that's the only thing which is troubling you"—digging in his inside coat pocket—"here's the receipt for $4,980 they gave me. That help you any?"

"It is only a form, sir, but you won't object to our verifying this?"

John Andrew's ears began to burn, but he controlled himself well enough. "You go ahead and verify anything you want," he said. "In the meantime I'll be . . . let's see . . . I'll go on back to the hotel, and you can phone me there."

Martin seemed to want to be helpful. "Why not have one of our boys drive you out, sir? That will give us a chance to examine the Mercury and see that there's nothing radically wrong with it . . . and give you an opportunity to ride in a Bradstreet; you'll find it compares very favorably with a Mercury, and our rubber insulated frame dampens all vibration . . . If, as I know it will be, everything is satisfactory, we'll send you our check."

"I'll want $500 in cash," John Andrew said.

"Very good, sir. If you wish, you may have it all in cash."

"Better yet," Kellogg smiled. "Save me being identified at a bank, or you taking me to one and using up your own time. Let's see; you're waiting for an O. K. from the Mercury people in San Francisco—to see that I really paid for the machine — and when you receive that, I get the two thousand."

"Perfectly correct, sir." What Martin did not add was that he, and the Bradstreet company, had no way of knowing that Kellogg was the man who had purchased the machine and that the Mercury custom built job might have been bought by a man named Kellogg and immediately after stolen by this suave, personable fellow. The bill of sale might well enough have been in the car. The resale price—$2,000—to which Kellogg had agreed was so low that the Bradstreet organization were fiercely looking for the fly in the ointment. The Mercury could be sold, they knew, for double that amount. Nor did they wish to lose this easy profit. Martin was undoubtedly justified in his suspicions, but was good enough business man not to be carried away by them. In addition to this, by keeping the Mercury in his possession he prevented Kellogg from running away with it; that John Andrew seemed perfectly willing to leave the car almost made Martin willing to buy it immediately, and he almost said as much. However, he was a careful man. It was his job to be careful; perhaps Kellogg had only said he was willing to leave the car in order to allay suspicion.

John Andrew gave him no time to think further.

"We'll call it settled, then. As soon as you get whatever you need from the Mercury's San Francisco branch, phone me at the Poinsettia"—and Martin jotted the name of the hotel down— "and send a messenger out with the money."

"Just as soon as we can, sir." Wanting the price in cash was suspicious. Martin decided again to let things run their course. "Will you go around and see if you can get a better price? Perhaps . . . I'm not sure, but we might raise our offer . . ."

"I'm going to the hotel and wait for your message," Kellogg said. He had been questioned all too much for his taste and wanted no more of it. What difference, anyhow, did a few hundreds make? "You let me know as soon as you can, eh?"

The Mercury, now, was sold, or as good as sold. In an hour or two he'd have $2,000. Five hundred of this must be wired Blake and his confounded legal advisers immediately, together with the reiterated demand that Blake (and, probably, his attorneys) go to the San Francisco offices of the Consolidated and sign over the patent rights. The hotel people—good egg, the manager—should have their money, but not a cent more than was due to date. After that (if he were in Los Angeles that long) if they asked for more before the week was out, he'd move and tell 'em what he thought of 'em. Then to wire dear old Craig: "I have met the enemy and she is ours," or, "It was a cinch. I didn't need 30 days. In 30 days I could make a million or better." No, just a simple telegram, such as "Ten thousand dollars now on deposit to my credit. All terms strictly adhered to." Despite the curious hit-or-miss way John Andrew had (or would soon), succeed, he felt warm gratification that he had not utterly failed.

Lastly, Anne. Or, firstly, Anne. John Andrew began to frame what he'd tell her. "You see, I didn't want you to think I could get away with it, Anne. I wanted to wait until there wasn't any doubt about success. You thought I was a big bluff, didn't you? What d'you want for an engagement present? Consolidated? I'll buy it for you. Or the city hall, set in diamonds? Or . . . "

He found Anne's name and telephone number thrust under his door with the notation that she had phoned and requested that Mr. Kellogg get in touch with her as soon as he returned to the Poinsettia.

Jubilee's Pardner

• • •

A Story of Humorous Boyhood Adventure

By JUDD MORTIMER LEWIS

SATURDAY. The wind was from the north but the sun must have been in the south so that it made a fella warm on the sunny side and cold on the shady side. I let Jubilee down and went down and tended to my stoves and milked, then I fed my face and went out and cleaned the stable like I have to do on Saturdays, and my grandfather came out and said he was going to go and buy a lot of new fishing tackle and take it out to the man at the old folks' home and he wanted to know if I didn't want to go along. I told him I didn't. I was going to tell him I did, but Youniss was behind him and shook her head, so I thought she wanted me to go somewhere else, and when I got my work done we all went over to her house and her mother had bought a lot of smear cases and we all sot around the table with plates and she brang out a jar of strawberry preserves and we mixed the smear case and the preserves and it tasted like warm ice cream. I didn't know anything could be so good, and when we got done her mother took a napkin and wiped my mouth and kissed me. Then Youniss wiped her mouth and looked at me and Feeble hollered, "I'm looking at you, Thomas Aristides," but I wasn't going to do anything anyhow.

Then we all went out to the culvert under the road and it was all under water, and there was a whirlpool where the water sucked down to go under it, and we'd throw sticks in it and they would go down and then we'd run across the road and see them come out on the other side. All at once when I was leaned over looking down someone jostled me and over I went. The water was like ice, and when I tried to come up to the top I felt something hard and I knew I was in the culvert and couldn't go back so I turned and dove till I touched the bottom with one hand and then I swum harder than I had ever swum in my life and it seemed like my chest was going to bust on me and something seemed to be whisling in my ears and when I couldn't stand it any more I let out what air I had in me, and then I went a little further, and then the water turned to light yellow and I had to come up if the bricks stopped me or not. But I was outside and I crawled out on the bank like a drowned dish-towel, and I heard some one screaming and I crawled up to the road and Feeble was screaming for an auto to stop, and the man stopped it, and Youniss had fainted and Maggie and the Lost Bag of Tripe were bellering, and the rest of the bunch was standing there looking scairt. The man whirled his car around and held Youniss on his lap while Banty drove us all to my house. I had to go to bed and Younisses mother came over and everyone was excited. And the Lost Bag of Tripe had spoilt my Saturday.

IF

If—I had saved I would not have to worry now that I am out of work.

If—I had saved, I would be able to take advantage of this business opportunity that now presents itself.

Love's Reawakening

A Wife's Triumph Over Jealousy

BY ADELE GARRISON

I STOPPED long enough on my way to Lillian's room to placate Mrs. Hasbrouck about her neglected supper.

"Are Mr. Underwood and your niece the only ones that are going to eat my nice supper?" she demanded from the dining-room door. "It is a nice meal if I do say it, as I shouldn't, and——"

"I'm coming down as soon as I have seen Mrs. Underwood," I answered. "But I'm going to ask a great favor of you for her. Let me take her up just some hot tea and a bit of bread and butter now. We are to go over to Mrs. Cosgrove's in an hour, and I know she can eat nothing which I do not force upon her until after she comes back—if she can then. But if you can keep something hot for her, I'll see what I can do with her then."

"I won't keep anything hot that long," she said with the truculence of the good cook who has been asked to do something unreasonable. "It wouldn't be fit to eat. But I'll fix her up something tasty when you get back and give me the word, something light, and yet nourishing, and something that won't take but a jiffy to prepare. And I'll have the tea for you right away. Do go on upstairs to Mrs. Underwood. There's a little table right outside your door, and I'll bring the tray up and set it outside the door before I knock. Wait a few seconds after you hear me knock—three times—and I'll be out of sight when you open the door. I know she won't want to see any strangers tonight."

"You are so thoughtful," I told her with admiring emphasis as I went on upstairs to Lillian, noting with satisfaction, as I did so, that Mary was in the other room of our suite, reading. Henry Underwood's warning concerning my husband's lovely young niece was still in my memory, both disturbing and bewildering in its vagueness and emphasis. I made a mental note that I must speak to Mrs. Hasbrouck—and also to Mary—before I went back to the Cosgrove home with Lillian.

I found my old friend ranging up and down the room, her hands clasping and unclasping in front of her, her head bent slightly. I stopped short as I saw her, for it is an unusual crisis of emotion indeed which brings such betrayal of feeling to Lillian Underwood. I knew that her nerves were frayed, worn almost to the breaking point, and that it was only her iron will which was keeping her from the storm of sobs and tears with which a weaker woman would have met the ordeal confronting her.

I did not have to speak to her first, something I dreaded doing, for as she turned in her pacing of the room, she saw me standing in the doorway, and came hurriedly toward me with outstretched hands.

"What news—how—" she faltered, and I caught her hands and held them firmly.

"He is stronger tonight," I said quickly, searching for something which would allay the dread consuming her. "And Mrs. Cosgrove sends you her love and is anxious to see you."

"I am—so—glad she feels that way," she said after a while. "I—I—did not expect it. When are we going to see Robert?"

"In about an hour," I answered, and ignored the start, almost of terror, which she gave. "He is very restless tonight, almost as if he hoped or expected to see some visitor. His nurse has given him a stimulant, so there will be no danger of his strength failing him at the surprise of seeing you——"

"You mean," she said, paling, "that there will be no danger of his heart stopping. Don't gloss things over for me. I'm acting very badly I know, but I'm able to stand the truth."

"Very well," I returned equably. "We'll leave it at that and go on from there. His sister thinks that I ought to go up to see him first."

"I so hoped you would think that was best," she said with a little sigh of relief. "What will you tell him?"

"First that I have a message from you, and then the truth that you are downstairs, waiting to see him."

"Oh!" she breathed, clutching my hands tighter, "how am I ever to go through with it?"

I returned the pressure of her hands, but I made my voice crisp and decisive.

"In the same brave way you've met every crisis of your life," I said. "If it will make it any easier, just pretend that you're a puppet, and I'll outline every movement for you until you cross the threshold of Robert Savarin's room. After that moment I cannot help you."

"After that only God can help me," she said solemnly. "Only He can show me what to say to Robert."
